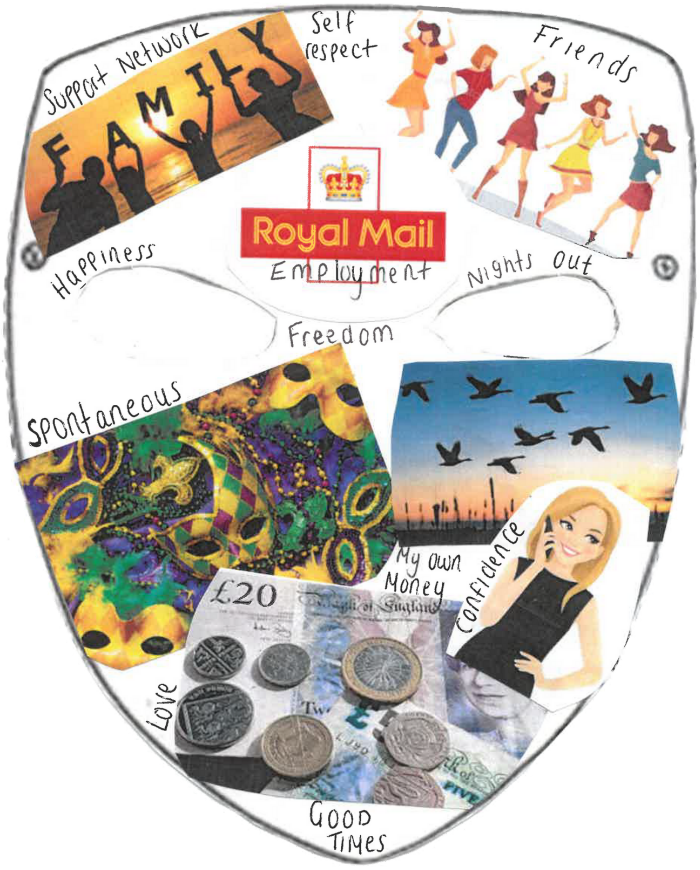
Chloe's Journey

BEFORE



Before I met the father of my son, I was able to work as much as and whenever I wanted. I managed to save a lot of money which I was able to spend on whatever I wanted, without asking for permission.

I would regularly meet up with my friends and talk to them whenever I wanted, on the phone. I didn't have to make excuses to my friends in order to avoid meeting up with them. I also didn't have to justify anything to anyone.

I was able to see my family whenever I wanted. There was no need to stick to a plan. I could be spontaneous and could do whatever I wanted to do.

I could choose and buy clothing for myself, to my own preference.

I was able to wear clothing of my own style and was able to just be myself.

I had financial independence.

Trident Reach

The survivor's name has been changed to protect their identity.