Sarah's Journey

BEFORE

My name is Sarah, and I am now 38 years old.

I was always an outgoing person I was a strong and confident person.

I had two children by the age of 20 and a relationship breakdown.

My youngest child was terribly ill, but I remained positive as I had the ability to carry on regardless of what was thrown my way.

I met Daniel, first as a childhood friend and then became involved with him in the period that my child was at his worst point in his illness.

Daniel offered me much support in this time, this lead me falling for his charm and kindness.

The relationship went on blissfully for a further three and a half years or so without an argument or disagreement of any sort.

I thought I had found the perfect partner.

Trident Reach

The survivor's name has been changed to protect their identity.